

Editorial Board

Lead Editor

Devon Schoeneman is a sophomore English and business double major. She is originally from Birmingham, Alabama, and is doing her first co-op at Deloitte in Boston in the spring. She hopes to pursue a career in publishing after graduation. Her favorite book is East of Eden.

Lead Conceptual Planner

Josephine Sloman is a second year dual major in English and Psychology from Upstate New York. In addition to NU Writing, Josephine is involved in emotion research at the Interdisciplinary Affective Science Lab. Her interests lie in the aspects of language, literature, society, and psychology that weave together, creating the concepts of culture and humanity. Her current plan is to pursue a PhD in Psychology.

Copy Editors

Melinda Dix is a fourth year English major, aspiring to teach high school English. She is originally from Starlight, Pennsylvania (population 403) and considers herself a recipe junky, relentless perfectionist, and unmistakable Sagittarius. Her hobbies include board games, camping, and canoeing. To this day, her favorite book is still My Many Colored Days by Dr. Seuss.

Hanna Gibeau is a fourth year English major from Denver, Colorado, and has taken co-ops at National Geographic Learning and Seventeen Magazine. She is a member of Northeastern University's Varsity Volleyball Team and a writing tutor for NU's Student Athlete Support Services. Hanna reads in her spare time and is pursuing a career in publishing.

Alexandra Forzato is a freshman English and Business double major. Her interests lie in historical and young adult fiction. Besides her interests in writing, Alexandra enjoys running around Boston and exploring the city.

Sara Tucker is a sophomore English major pursuing a career in publishing. She is Inside editor of the Huntington News and assistant researcher with the linguistics department at Northeastern. She is a native of Richmond, Virginia.

Graduate student advisors: Laura Hartmann-Villalta and Kristi Girdharry.