

Editorial Board

Lead Editor

Delaney Rebernik is a senior English major and communication studies minor from central Jersey. In addition to serving on the NU Writing editorial board, she's been a writing center tutor at Northeastern and Roxbury Community College, and is currently doing freelance editing work for a marketing specialist. After graduation, she will begin work at HCPro, a healthcare publisher in Danvers, MA, as an Associate Editor.

Lead Conceptual Planners

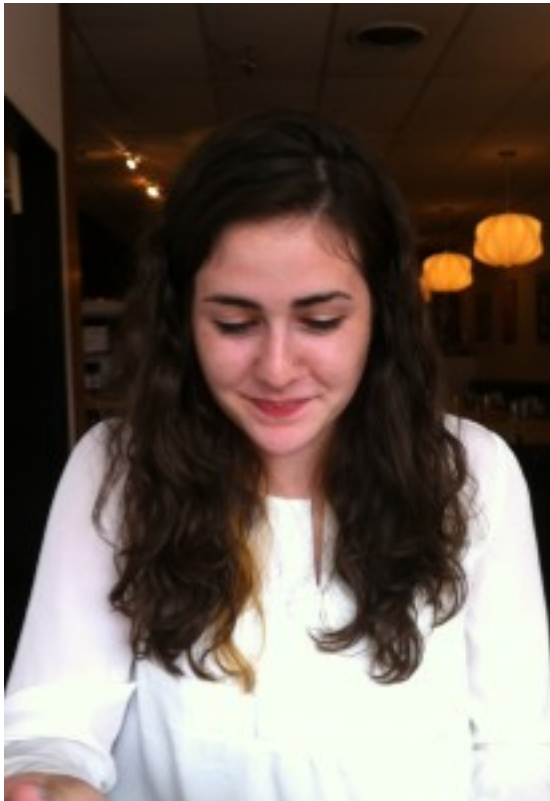

Melinda Dix is a fourth year English major with a minor in communication studies. She is originally from Starlight, Pennsylvania, and considers herself a recipe junky, relentless perfectionist, and unmistakable Sagittarius. To this day, her favorite book is still My Many Colored Days by Dr. Seuss.

Andrew Madanjian is a freshman English major from Woburn, Massachusetts. In addition to NU Writing, he is also a member of Spectrum Literary Arts Magazine. Aside from reading and writing, his interests include baking chocolate chip cookies, rollerblading, archery, and exploring this great city of Boston. His favorite books are the Harry Potter series, which, he is proud to say, he has read four times.

Primary Copy Editor

Devon Schoeneman is a sophomore English and business double major. She is originally from Birmingham, Alabama, and is currently doing her first co-op at Deloitte in Boston. She hopes to pursue a career in publishing after graduation. Her favorite book is East of Eden.

Graduate student advisor: Kristi Girdharry